

What is it?

My communication

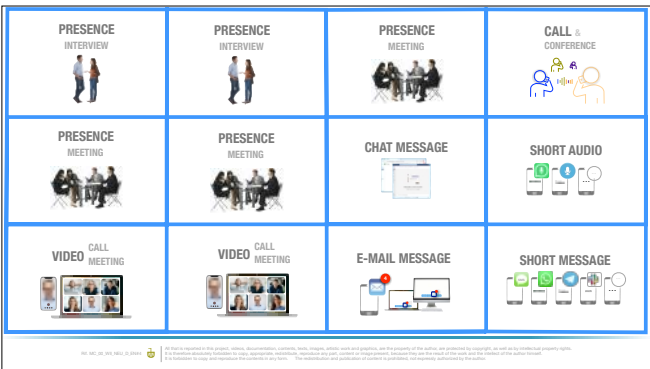

Communicating is an action that we carry out continuously every day.

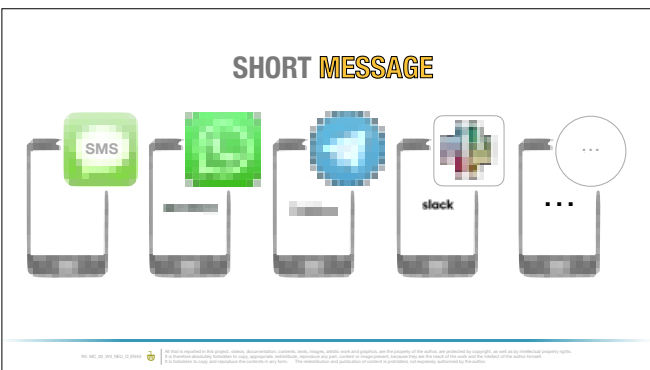

When we work together with a colleague or discuss what is best to do, writing news on social media or answering a phone call ...

... explaining our position to a customer or supplier, in a remote meeting or during a work session, talking to colleagues and solving a problem over the phone or with a message.

It is so frequent that we automatically use the method that is most suitable for us, the easiest, but perhaps not always the most correct.

Getting an idea or refreshing our way of communicating brings advantages in what you do every day.

A clean, linear and simple communication ...

... for the people you deal with, which gives you the feedback you want and limits misunderstandings.

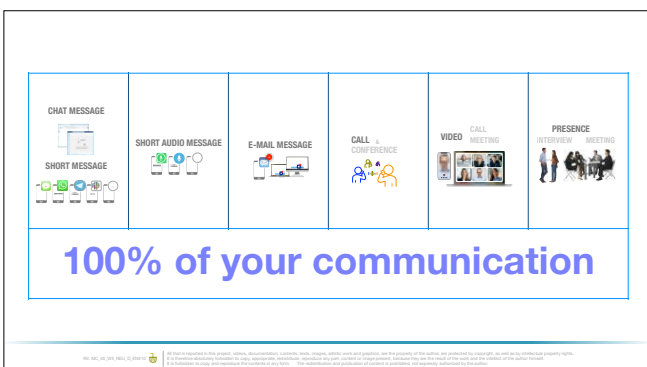

That it doesn't have to be repetitive and that it doesn't interrupt you constantly.

May it be as organized as possible, and improve the quality of your working time.

A communication that allows you to better manage the multiple activities you carry out every day, indeed, that is the engine of your performance.
